	Year 11	Year 12	Year 13
Course Content	Students develop their ability to understand and communicate personal information, ideas and opinions in different situations. Topics are of immediate relevance to their lives, such as friends & family, entertainment, travel and social arrangements. Music, film and other authentic texts are incorporated into the course.	Students engage in sustained interactions and produce increasingly extended texts. Exploring different views, they develop and share personal perspectives and justify, support or challenge ideas and opinions in different situations. Topics are adapted to interests and current affairs, but typically include relationships, technology, youth culture and latest trends. The study of French film, music and other authentic texts are incorporated into the course.	Engaging with a variety of extended texts, students will respond clearly and critically. Expected to more widely explore the views of others, they will not only develop and share personal perspectives, but also justify, support or challenge others' ideas and opinions. Moving beyond immediate experience, topics are adapted to interests, but focus on trends, current affairs and social issues. The study of French film, music and other authentic texts are incorporated into the course.
